

Civil claim in connection with an offence
(The improved version of 23 January 2024)

A little, Will, a little.

Will, I told you how a judge who works for a criminal court judges a defendant but I told you if you lose in some criminal courts, you must compensate a large number of compensation and interest.

As a result, Will, you may doubt “Why a loser must pay for compensation and interest for a criminal case?”

Will, it is because there is “civil claim in connection with an offence”.

Will, it means “If a man is judged to lose for a criminal case, the man must compensate compensation and interest for an opposite who is judged to win, for a civil case too” An example is that a man who is convicted of offences against life and body of criminal code is convicted of tort and liability of civil law too. ... Will, I am just not sure that if we proceed our criminal cases at court of law of our country, will we have the full right to proceed the criminal cases at International Criminal Court?

Will, I know not many vocabularies, so I will not explain more. But I believe that it is not difficult for you to find the knowledge.

Thank you very much, sir.
